Stay in play

Sometimes it's best to be aggressive

Some tee boxes are scary. That's down to course design, something you can't control. But with an understanding of your dispersion patterns, you can adjust your aim to minimise risk. That frees you up to approach a daunting hole with more confidence.

Not sure what your dispersion pattern is? Let's get on the range and find out.

Discover your dispersion >

"Let's say there's a hazard that extends down the fairway and stops at 180 metres. You know your hybrid has a tighter dispersion than your driver. But you also know your driver dispersion gets your ball well beyond the hazard, taking it out of play altogether and giving you a shorter approach. That's when being aggressive is the better choice."

Better decisions save shots

A more enjoyable golfing experience isn't only about improving your swing. Simply making better choices has a positive impact. We're here to help you with both.

A game for all

Competition doesn't matter

Particularly when you're starting out in golf, the most important thing is that you enjoy yourself.

Bend some rules

Certain rules are unavoidable, like teeing off from the tee box and repairing your divots. But if you don't want to play from the rough or bunker or over water, drop a ball in the fairway. If you want to tee it up on the fairway, do it.

Do anything to make your experience more enjoyable.

Simplify things

Take a sleeve of golf balls, a short iron, and your putter and play 18 holes of approach shots. Use the walk between the tee box and approach to simply enjoy being outdoors. Better yet, bring a friend along.
