Summer Golf is Upon us!

Here are eight ways for you to enjoy your golf, even more, this summer!

1. Pre-round planning. On your drive to the golf club, plan and prepare for a good round of golf. Keep your thoughts positive and try to visualise some of the shots you will play.
2. Nail your first drive. What a confidence booster when you step up and hit one down the middle of the fairway.
3. A great recovery shot. Never follow a bad shot with another bad shot. Getting it up and down from a bunker or curving one around the trees onto the green will always put a smile of your face.
4. Backspin. There's nothing quite like seeing a golf ball spin backward. It's almost magical, and it can only happen to an extremely well-struck golf shot. One of those shots can make anyone feel like a pro.
5. Nothing beats a hole-in-one, even breaking your age. Get the certificate and show everyone that you are now a part of the exclusive "Perfect Fluke" club.
6. There's nothing quite as exciting as holing a good putt to win a match. Man against man, step up and pop it in. Nothing better.
7. Whether it's a beer or another drink of your choice, that first one at the 19th hole goes down so well! You quickly forget whether you won or lost and whether your golf was good or bad. Just savour the moment.
8. Sometimes even a drink doesn't make you forget that winning a match gives you bragging rights until the next one is played! Make the most of those rights, they don't last forever.

Stretch for a better game

How old does your back make you feel?

How do you keep yourself loose and flexible but your game tight?

Stretching. Stretching regularly won't only improve your game and reduce chances of injury, it'll improve your life off the course too.

If your hamstrings are tight, your ability to correctly position yourself during your swing is limited. This tilts your pelvis and causes rounding in your lower back. This restricts your swing, and causes pain in the long term. The right stretches will help you avoid this.

Break 100

Say no to "par pressure"

You don't need a single par to break 100. In fact, over 18 holes, carding 9 bogeys and 9 double bogeys gets you to 99. If you're shooting between 100 and 110, ignoring the par score of every hole is your first step to getting into the 90s.

A photograph of a golf ball on a green with a scorecard overlay. The scorecard is a table with 19 columns: HOLE, 1 through 18, IN, and TOT. It has 4 rows: Regular, PAR, and Player A. The 'IN' and 'TOT' columns are circled in green.

HOLE	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	OUT	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	IN	TOT
Regular	380	190	380	380	470	380	380	190	470	2840	190	380	470	380	380	190	380	470	380	2870	5710
PAR	4	3	4	4	5	4	4	3	5	36	3	4	5	4	4	3	4	5	4	36	72
Player A	5	5	5	6	6	5	6	5	6	49	5	6	7	5	6	4	5	6	6	50	99

But if you're just struggling to get the ball in the air, let's first spend some time on the range together.

Chat to us

Regulation par is irrelevant

Regulation par scoring demands that you have a birdie putt on every hole.

But when you're trying to break 100, a bogey putt on every hole is YOUR "par".

| Change your mindset

Simple shifts in mindset combined with just one or two improvements can get you to that magic number of 99. For most golfers, a small improvement to their short game gets them there, but what works for you?
