Back to the course

What makes you come back?

We all love this game called golf. It brings us the greatest joy when we play well and it frustrates us when things don't go our way. However, for every golfer there is something about the game that makes them come back again and again for another round of 9 or 18 holes.

Why do you play?

What is it about the game that makes you come back time and time again? Is it the piping drive on 18, the plugged bunker lie you stop right next to the hole or perhaps the camaraderie you have with your weekly fourball and the post-round celebrations you share?

More than a game

Fellowship of the swing

From the 1st tee to the 18th green, golfers celebrate and commiserate with one another. Sharing this unique gift of fellowship with a family member or close friend won't only enrich your golf, it'll enrich your life!

Tally memorable moments

From the euphoria of an opening-hole birdie to the exasperation of a missed putt on the final green, golfers see one another at their very best and worst, all in the space of five hours. Who better to have with you every step of the way than the people closest to you? Bring your family and friends to the course for an experience that gives them a new passion and you a new playing partner.

Golf is more than just a game, it's the gift of challenges overcome together and memories shared along the way.

Debunking the myth

One club-fitting myth is the relationship between your ability and the resultant pay-off. Remember, you're good enough.

Help don't hinder

While the cost of a fitting is an understandable consideration, what shouldn't be is whether a fitting is worthwhile. You don't have to achieve a certain standard of play to benefit from a fitting. An ill-suited driver restricts your development and enjoyment of the game. With a driver fitting, you can kill two birds with one stone.
