Ready, Set, Go!

This decision matters

Don't play just any golf ball. Play a ball that suits your game so can play better golf this season!

Factors influencing flight

If it's extra distances off the tee you're after, a distance golf ball is likely what you want, while a soft-feel ball gives you more control around the greens. Whether a ball suits you depends on how well the mechanics of your swing, as well as your playing style, match up with the ball's design. Get fitted for a golf ball that gives YOU the right amount of compression and spin, and you'll carry your game further.

SHORTEN YOUR APPROACH

Golfers with a faster swing can increase their metalwood and long-iron distance by playing a golf ball with a higher compression. And that means fewer metres to cover to the green. The new Srixon Z-STAR XV is your fast, high-compression route to shorter approach shots.

Make your own luck

Practise like you play

You've probably heard that famous saying: "The more I practise, the luckier I get." But we'd take that even further to say that it's not just how much you practise, but how you practise.

18-holes on the range

Set aside a practice session where you cycle through your clubs as you would if you were playing on course. Perhaps the first 'hole' is a par 4 where you hit driver followed by short iron. The next could be a 'par 5' where you hit driver, then fairway, then wedge. You get the idea.

A pre-shot routine helps to settle the nerves and can make a huge difference to your consistency. But for it to work out on the course, you need to hardwire it into your muscle memory, and that means doing your pre-shot routine during practice as well.

Let's make you luckier

There are many drills you can perform during practice that will help to give you more lucky breaks during a round. If you'd like some drill suggestions, or if there's an area of your game giving you trouble, reach out to us.
