From the Club

Rugby fever is about to hit!

In the build-up to the Rugby World Cup there's another Rugby Game on this Saturday, with South Africa taking on Wales.

We will have our Braai Buffet on offer from 15h00 so come down for some good food, great company and gees and hopefully a win by the Boks!

Contact Ina on (012)654-1144 / admin@zwartkopcatering.co.za if you want to book a table.

SA RUGBY

I'm sure you are well aware that the World Cup is taking place next month.

If you don't already have a match planner here is a link to the official version plus they have an App you can download so you won't miss out on 1 minute of it all.

Exciting news is that our Windhoek Fan Park will be ready for the first game with a large outdoor screen up under the blue gum tree for you to view the games.

We can't wait!

Losing a bet for a good cause

Shawn Rouse & Jan Graaff lost their match against their wives Ina and Karin, on Sunday. Thanks to that, they not only had to down Strawberry Lips shots, but they have agreed to contribute to the Ladies Rosebowl.

Next up these ladies have their sights on Dale Michler and Chris Delport, and they're hoping another win will score some give-aways for the Rosebowl.

Speaking of the Rosebowl... ladies, start spreading the word and save the date – Thurs, 21st September - we'll be raising money for CANSA this year.

Ask yourself the question

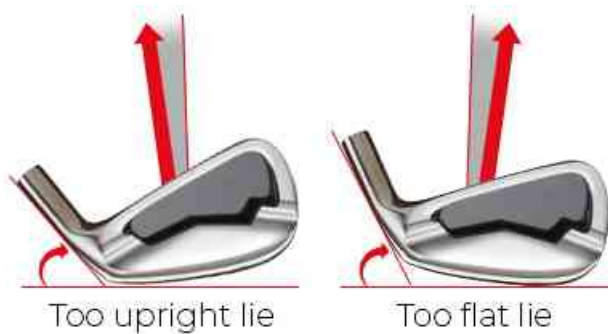

“Are my irons pushing me?”

You set up parallel to your target line, the ball is positioned perfectly in your stance, and you executed a good swing, yet you still pushed the shot and missed the green. Why? The answer could lie with your actual iron.

When your lie angle is out by just 1 degree, you can stray up to 10 feet wide of your target. That's the difference between finding the green and missing it.

Reveal the lie

Are your irons lying to you?

Lie angle is the angle between the shaft and the ground at address. If you're struggling with pushed shots, your lie angle could be too flat, causing a toe bias at impact, which opens the face and pushes your ball at launch.

Greenside glee

Flopping fun

The flop shot isn't just one of the most fun shots to play, it'll also bail you out of many sticky greenside situations. Learn it, lower your scores and become the envy of your playing partners!

Learn the flop shot

Trust yourself

A well executed flop shot stops sooner after landing, giving you more potential to create scoring opportunities.

However, the flop requires more courage and commitment than any other short-game shot, so you need to trust yourself to execute it. But once you know how, you'll become a more attacking player around the greens, even when you're short-sided.

Yes, you can!

The flop shot isn't reserved for only the best players. With our help, you'll have another shot up your sleeve to deal with those tricky situations and experience more greenside glee.
